2012

and it's already going swimmingly!

With 2012 now here, many will be thinking about the Olympic games, shortly to begin.

ANS are already involved!
500m² of ANS Living Wall System™ have been supplied and were installed mid-2011 on the Aquatic Centre. After extensive research by the architects involved in the project, the ANS System was the only system that could handle the complex curves and angles of the structure. A full size cross-section was created on the nursery to demonstrate exactly how the ANS System would achieve full coverage with no gaps.

Planted with blue moor grasses (Sesleria Caerulea), the design was to resemble the rippling of water. As the plants move, swathes of blue and green are created, achieving an awe-inspiring visual impact to the 'already stunning' Aquatic centre. The images shown was taken through the installation!

Ein frohes neues Jahr für Sie!

A happy new year to you, as they say in Germany!

ANS have now established a distributor in Germany. Click on the flag to find out more. Negotiations are currently underway with other companies across Europe, as we hope to introduce further distributors in the near future. As they become appointed we will 'flag them up' on our website.

Making an entrance

High end residential project

Living walls aren't just for corporate, commercial and retail environments, as this beautiful living wall shown opposite demonstrates.

This prestigious Georgian privately owned property in Cambridge Gate is now complemented by a two storey high living wall enhancing the courtyard of the home making a very welcoming and aesthetically pleasing area.
